Mississippi Inventor to Exhibit “The Wicked Green Box” at America’s Largest Invention Show

PITTSBURGH... InventHelp’s INPEX®, America’s Largest Invention Trade Show, announces that Charles W. Robinson, from Petal, Mississippi, has invented an all-electric power generator that uses no fuel. This invention will be exhibited at INPEX® 2011, June 14-17, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

“The Wicked Green Box” is a power generator that is all-electric – no fuel necessary. The inverter type unit is smaller and lighter than traditional power generators and provides years of service. The A/C version will save the average homeowner 40% annually on cooling and heating costs.

The Wicked Green Box is ideal for use by all homeowners. The portable design could be used by anyone utilizing portable generators. All units do not require fuel.

The inventor was inspired to think of his invention because of a devastating heat wave years ago. “The heat wave of the late 80’s inspired me because hundreds of the elderly died that could not run their air conditioner because of power bill costs,” said Robinson. “The original design is made to connect to a condenser unit to take the main A/C load off the grid and provide comfort levels homeowner’s desire rather than afford.”

Robinson is exhibiting The Wicked Green Box at INPEX® with the hopes of finding a manufacturer, venture capitalist or licensee.

INPEX®, The Invention Show, is a unique trade show that showcases new products and innovations that are available to business and industry to manufacture, license or distribute. As part of the trade show, The Invention Show sponsors INPEX® Inventors University™, a series of seminars, presentations, and panel discussions to provide information that inventors may find useful in pursuing their ideas. This year, INPEX® is proud to announce Debbi Fields, inventor of Mrs. Fields Cookies, as the 2011 keynote speaker.
